ZIPFIZZ BERRY

Zipfizz Berry

Cost: $2 .4 oz (makes 16 oz)

Active ingredients: Caffeine, Guarana, Ginseng, B6, B12, L-Arginine, Taurine, Green Tea leaf
 5 Calories

Rating: 7.745 out of 10

This might actually be my favorite powdered energy drink now, the berry flavor is delicious. Supremely delicious especially considering it is a powdered drink. Now you do need to make sure to use enough water and really stir it up because otherwise the bottom of your cup will be way to sweet and salty and taste something like blueberry sweat. Anyways this makes a tasty lunch time drink and gives you about the lift as a cup of coffee. The crazy thing is it has 41,667% of your daily dose of B12, which just seems insane. I read the label like 30 times to make sure that is right. I mean I have seen 2000% 4500%, but 41,667% of the dosage, wow, simply wow. Anyways this has a great berry flavor, low calories and is uniquely flavored. People I know that like Emergency C, liked this better and it does pack in many of the same vitamins so I figure they might work comparably well for the whole immunity thing as well. Anyways if your looking for an energy drink rocket to send you flying high this won't do it, but if you just want a little pep in your step with a low calorie snack, give it a go.

Dan:

Don't you mean: "way too sweet" instead of "way to sweat"

Don't you mean: "you're" instead of "your"

What do you mean by "they might work comparably well for the whole immunity thing . . .". What do you know about immunity and what are your credentials for insinuating that you would know?

With your lack of understanding the English language and how to spell and punctuate, what would make you think that anyone would possibly care what you think about the chemistry and ingredients in a energy drink?

Posted by: Jim at March 23, 2007 07:30 AM

>Don't you mean: "way too sweet" instead of "way to sweat"

Yes corrected.

>Don't you mean: "you're" instead of "your"

No because this isn't formal writing and I dont believe in apostrophes, they are useless and dont help you read anything they are a waste of time. If you couldnt understand the meaning of the sentence without the " your an idiot, the point of writing is to convey thoughts and ideas I think anyone could read the above review and understand it just fine... Grammar nazis waste their time running around commenting on blogs about how people shouldnt write unless they write formally, but produce almost no value of their own. Do I know more about the above energy drink from your comment? No. I have responded to this before explaining my stance on grammar and writing, in response to fark.com users (<http://www.bandddesigns.com/energy/arch/002698.php>), if you can understand it I think you will find it highly amusing.

>What do you mean by "they might work comparably well for the whole immunity thing . . .". What do you know about immunity and what are your credentials for insinuating that you would know?

I don't need any as I am basing them off the Emergency C claim, basically they claim a bunch of vitamin C will help you not get sick, this drink much like Emergency C has a ton of vitamin C (almost 1000%)... So if you haven't heard the whole vitamin C thing pull your head out of the sand, now you can debate how true it is or not, but it is a commonly held belief.

>With your lack of understanding the English language and how to spell and punctuate, what would make you think that anyone would possibly care what you think about the chemistry and ingredients in a energy drink?

Many people care, far more than people care about your opinion. I have been is most of the national news talking about these drinks, Dan Mayer in the press (<http://www.bandddesigns.com/energy/arch/002956.php>). I have had over 2 million readers in the last 2 years, what about you? Why do cruel people like you come onto sites and attack people for no reason? Trying to spread anger and hate in the world because they can't produce anything of their own? Anyways Jim as they say over at fark, DIAF.

peace,
Dan "energy" Man

Posted by: Dan "energy" Man at March 23, 2007 09:33 AM

Wow, I had this stuff and I couldn't even finish one bottle b/c it was soooo nasty. I've consumed various brands of energy drinks and this one was as bad as they get. Everyone has their own taste I guess but I really couldn't say this "tasted" good. It was NAAA AAAAA SSS TEEEEE.

Posted by: gary at March 26, 2007 10:03 AM

Good for you Dan "energy" Man. I find your comments and knowledge of the energy drinks very informative. I drive "over the road " night time and I am often concern about these so call "energy drinks". Which ones are good tasteing and good for you and what are the long term effects of drinking theses on a regular basis.

The only thing I found a waste of my time is reading the nit picking comments these "grammer commies" gripe about that has nothing in common about the information you bring to us on hand. Once again... Great Job... Dan the energy Man. You Are "DA MAN"!

Posted by: Dale at March 26, 2007 10:04 AM

I agree with you dan, Most people don't care about the grammer as much as they do the information given. Your response to the jim's opinion was great. zipfizz is an aquired tasted. The first time that I had some, I thought it wasn't very good, but I only had the lemonade. After a couple servings,I liked it, I prefer the regular energy drinks though.

Posted by: jess at April 7, 2007 09:13 PM

I had the berry also after listening to a salesman who was demo'n the product. As a bike rider this product delivers on its claims!

Posted by: Eric at May 20, 2007 06:56 AM

@Jim...I bet you read your post over and over before you posted it. Too bad that you wrote "a energy drink", instead of "an energy drink". Check yourself before bashing others.

Posted by: JD at June 15, 2007 12:22 AM

Dan, I just tried ZipFizz for the first time. I love this stuff. It tastes great (fruit punch) and does the trick. I don't have the powder version but i'm thinking they're the same... lots of B12!

As for teacher Jim, get a life. Seriously, stop what you are doing right this second and go and get yourself a life.

Is anyone concerned that it does contain sucralose (Splenda)? Read up on some possible side effects of this fake sugar. I personally know 2 people who have had serious health issues attributed to their consumption of splenda. Once they quit using it their symptoms went away. Just a thought especially for those interested in health.

Posted by: tracy at July 7, 2007 09:49 AM

I love Zipfizz - started with the citrus flavor, but have moved on to the berry and pink lemonade ... berry being my fave!
This stuff really gives you a long boost of energy!! My friend is trying to lose weight, and his doctor gives him a SHOT of B12 - so I'm thinking it must be the cure to a lack of energy ;)

Posted by: D at July 11, 2007 09:48 PM

HAHA What with all the spellin corrections on a drink review?

Anyhow, it's a good drink and yes the powder version of ZipFizz is probably better as it can be made to taste.

Posted by: seo at July 18, 2007 02:44 AM

You can make a massive oral dose of B-12 taste only so good... that's the vitamin that gives most vitamins that "vitaminy" smell and taste (yeah, Jim, I made that up- is that OK? LOL). BUT, this stuff works great for me. I've tried the Tropical Punch power shots and the Berry powder... I think I like the Berry powder the best. Great energy boost, and no typical crash when it wears off (like I get if I drink a Monster or Rockstar). I can deal with the taste, the Berry is a little less vitamin-like than the power shot- but the power shot is down and gone in a second, I don't think anyone intended it to be a sipping beverage! LOL I have Patron for that, thank you.

Posted by: dagnabbit at August 16, 2007 11:09 AM

I discovered Zip Fizz Liquid Shot and the powder varieties at a Costco demo. We got the Liquid Shot for my 85 yr. old mom and she loves it. She mixes it half and half with OJ every morning and it has really made a beautiful difference in her energy level. So I started on it too and like it alot. I always mix it with other juice at home, but if on the road, you can drink it straight...really too sweet for me like that but just a momentary displeasure. This is A LOT cheaper than Sub Lingual B12.

Posted by: mshtexas at October 7, 2007 02:12 PM

I think B12 and other vitamins in this drink is just clever marketing, what really does the trick is the 100mg of caffeine, that is something like 3 cans of coca cola...

Posted by: Andrey at November 13, 2007 11:44 AM

Did you here of the new flavors of Zip Fizz? In the Liquid Shot drink they came out with mango lemon lime it tastes so good, smooth.
In the powder zip fizz they have orange soda flavor,tastes good also tastes like the creamsicle ice cream bar
100mg caffeine you say.. did you see that it is the green tea gurana caffeine and equivalent to 1/3 of a tall Starbucks coffee, or to 2 exedrine tablets.

Posted by: Jo at December 17, 2007 10:21 AM

You know what makes zip fizz 100000 % better?

Instead of using normal water, mix it with carbonated water.

It's great normal, but it's super yum carbonated.

My favorite flavor is the pink lemonade.

Posted by: Cheeseman at December 22, 2007 11:31 PM

Mix with equal parts apple juice and water; this helps dampen out the citrus sting. Use more than 20 oz total liquid. Shake, let it sit for 2 minutes then shake again.

Optional : mix with vodka, ice, blender. joy.

I will chime in with some comments and a question.

My mother first started drinking this stuff, she usually has no energy at all and takes a 2 hour nap halfway through the day since drinking zipfizz she has had much more energy, as well she has lost 14 pounds (a side effect of the Zipfizz or just having the energy to do more stuff I cant be for sure). I tried it myself, first the lemonade (gross) Pink Lemonade (even worse) Berry (to sweet) Half Lemonade/Half berry (this was tricky but it was decent empty half one and half the other) but then Orange Soda came along.. I love it!! I try to take about 2 of the containers with me a day. I cant honestly say if it gives me that "rush" (I honestly dont feel that from other energy drinks either) But I feel content thinking im getting all those vitamins, and I too have heard about this B12 shot "diet". Another thing on the Market by ZipFizz is their recent ImmuneFizz (I have only seen it at Costco) While up in VA for christmas (very cold compared to florida) me and my mother drank one of these "ImmuneFizz" every day (the 2 flavors Fruit punch and tropical punch tasted very good) and neither one of us got sick (Again this is not a good measure of the effectiveness because I have no clue if we would of gotten sick to begin with), but I was satisfied with the notion I was arming myself against it somewhat.

Now my question... Does anyone know what causes the tiny balls that settle at the bottom? I hear different answers, its the vitamins (if so shouldnt I be trying to get those up?) Ive also hear its just powder that couldnt combine into the mixture (because of the water molecules being supersaturated, pulling that one out of 9th grade chemistry :))

One recommendaion, Instead of buying bottled water continuously, go to just about any store and get the Lexan or Nalgene-type whatever they are hard drinking containers (with the screw on top (not the rubbermaid and alike snap tops, you want to have a secure seal when you shake it up) many have the measurements on the side, and then you arent being wasteful, these come in various sizes but if you can get them at 16-24 oz its much better. I filled my 32 oz one with 16 oz of water the other day, fizzed it up, and the end result it tasted very flat (perhaps all the extra air took down on the almost carbonation like that is caused in it)

Also Never Try to put the contents in water while oyr driving.. on many occasions I have had a fizzover, and one time my mom put a bit of water in the zipfizz container to get a bit out of the bottom (I guess the florida Humidity got to the package?)and the Zipfizz shot out all over her and even to the back window.. so be careful while driving!

I gotta try the Carbonated water method

Man I almsot sound like a Zipfizz rep lol
